The ladies of the Universalist society will hold their annual sale at Concert Hall, Tuesday afternoon, commencing at 3 o'clock, and evening. The admission will be free.

The chief feature of the evening will be a "Remembrance" table filled with gifts from absent friends and former residents of old Norway.

An entertainment will be given at intervals during the evening.
These sales have been held for years and have always been well worth patronizing. The entertainments are something new and interesting, and the eatables the best of their kind.

Surprise Party.
Mrs. Mary Hall of Yaggar was given a surprise party, March 10th, it being her seventy-sixth birthday. About 2 o'clock Mrs. Hall sat sewing, patchwork, she happened to look out of the window and saw J. P. Howe with a two-horse load of her neighbors driving into the yard. He was followed by five single teams, making in all a party of thirty. By the time they were all landed she began to mistrust the meaning of it, and seemed very much pleased after she had recovered from her surprise.

She received many useful presents, among them a savings' bank in the form of a pig, doubtless given to encourage her to save her pennies while she was young. Another was a rather suspicious looking bottle labeled Dr. Danforth's Spring Bitters, but it proved on being tested to be only maple syrup. We were glad Sheriff Peterson was not one of the party, for we might not have had a chance to sample it if he had spied it.

Promptly at 5 o'clock the supper call came and two well filled tables stood ready for the happy company who proceeded to clear them at once amid much joking and laughter, after which they soon started for home, hoping for more such in the future.

Pearl Elliott of Rumford is visiting her sister, Mrs. E. S. Cummings.

NUMBER 11.

Bar Supper at Beal's House.

Some thirty years ago the members of Oxford Bar formed an association and about once a year would have a bar supper or banquet. Two such meetings were held at the Hubbard House. For many years past the Association has neglected this feature of their organization until last Tuesday evening, when some thirty of the Association held a Bar Supper at the Beal's House. Judge Peabody, the presiding judge at the present term of court, was present as a guest of the bar.

The following was the bill of fare:

OXFORD COUNTY BAR SUPPER.

Beal's Hotel, March Term.

Olives, Radishes, Pure of Tomatoes.

Bolton Chicken, Turkey, Cranberry Jelly.

Young Vermont Turkey, Cranberry Jelly.

Mashed Potatoes, French Peas.

Lettuce, Chicken Salad, Lobster Salad.

Wine Jelly.

Orange Cake, Chocolate Cake, Nut Cake, Coconut Cake.

Frozen Pastry.

Oranges, Bananas, Apples, Grapes, Cluster Raisins, Figs.

Soda Biscuits, Crackers, Cigars.

American Cheese, Coffee, Cigars.

Hon. Geo. D. Bisbee of Rumford Falls, toast master, opened by saying that he had attended four banquets in this county, and introduced Judge H. C. Peabody, a child of old Oxford county.

Judge Peabody began by paying tribute to the schools and scholars, pluck and grit of the sons and daughters of our country, and proceeded to tell stories which caused much merriment among the most sagacious of our legal members.

'Then he settled down to a seriousness that caused merriment and yet in his words was a seriousness that would have caused less humane men to stop and remember that there was a dividing line between right and wrong. He closed with this sentiment, "Get honor honestly."

Hon. A. S. Kimball spoke of the Bench. He started out with the history of our law as it began amongst civilized nations. Then he took the course of our poor boys of Oxford and traced them through their boyhood days through their struggles in youth until they became honored by their fellow men and went at last to their graves, not only honored but honorable men whom the state of Maine is proud of today, and in years to come will point to, with the finger of pride, as models of her children. Mr. Kimball's address was able and interesting.

Col. E. F. Smith followed with his genial entertaining way and proceeded to tell us how the Oxford bears left this cold climate and went south during the dark days of our Rebellion and helped to keep the grandest flag that ever floated to the breeze unstained, and when Mr. Smith got through we were satisfied that bears could endure a hotter climate and yet come back and enjoy our cold climate and bear honorable records and be honorable bears.

Hon. James S. Wright spoke of the "bar and its loyalty to its clients." He spoke in his easy yet dignified manner, words of wisdom to the younger members who were in a large majority his hearers.

His words were of advice and were both old and young.

A. J. Stearns related his experience in our navy, but to our great surprise his days of service in "our navy" were passed almost wholly on dry land.

G. P. Barnes' subject was, Lawyers in the future. He had an idea and expressed it, that before long some would be "toasting their shins" where the fire will never grow cold.

Hon. John P. Swasey spoke to the toast, Lawyers of the past. He related in his happy eloquent vein, the incident that he had seen that caused him to remember that he was a citizen of the greatest republic in existence today, and that he, a member of the grandest government we have any knowledge of, yet the lawyers of the past laid the foundation, built and supported this government and would continue its chief defenders for ages yet to come. But out the legal fraternity and civilization is lost.

A. S. Kimball, Norway.

L. L. Gray, South Paris.

R. L. Barker, Rumford Falls.

E. S. Stearns, "

G. D. Barnes, "

G. W. Johnson, "

T. S. Bridgman, Bethel.

C. K. Brooks, South Paris.

J. S. Wright, "

J. H. Bean, "

A. D. Park, "

F. A. Fox, Kears Falls.

E. H. Hastings, Fryburg.

C. Warren, "

S. W. Rife, Norway.

G. P. Barnes, "

A. J. Stearns, "

E. C. Park, Bethel.

J. W. Philbrick, "

A. E. Herriek, "

John P. Swasey, Canton.

J. S. Harlow, Oxford.

John R. Trask, "

E. B. Kneeland, Bridgton.

R. R. Dyer, Bethel.

Farmers' Institute.

The Farmers' Institute was most profitable to those who attended.

Prof. J. L. Hill of the Vermont Experiment Station spoke on dairying. Poor cows cannot afford to be raised or kept. The milk of each cow should be weighed and tested. Feed will change the quantity but not the quality of milk.

Dana H. Morse of Randolph, Vt., who spoke on hay production, said more land should be plowed in the fall and harvested thoroughly in the spring.

John W. Clark of North Hadley spoke on orcharding. He advised buying trees of well known and reliable agents and selecting high land for the orchards on the southern slope of a hill if possible.

He pointed out principally the tried varieties of Baldwin, Hubbardston, Nonpareil and Gravenstein. The ground where the trees are wants to be cultivated for several years till the trees get to be quite large.

Most of the kinds of trees were raised if the ground is well fertilized. Young trees will not grow in grass ground, and there is where many who buy trees and set them out make a failure. Raise only a few varieties of apples.

The flower speakers were Hon. John A. Roberts, Norway; Hon. A. W. Gilman, Foxcroft; Dr. Fellows, the new president of the University of Maine; S. M. King, Paris.

Wendell Tripp, who has been in Oxford with his father for some time past, has returned to his home in this village.

Doings at the Court House.

March Term, Supreme Judicial Court.

Things looked unusually busy about the court house Tuesday and will continue to have that appearance for some time to come. The first two sessions of the March term of court were held on that day.

The continued civil docket numbers 224 cases, equity 7, criminal docket 57.

Very little was done, except perhaps by the Grand Jury, at either the forenoon or afternoon sessions except to call the cases on the docket, etc., and to assign the days on which the trials are to occur.

The entrance of Judge Peabody was announced by the clerk at about 10 a. m. and after a prayer by Rev. W. E. Brooks the roll-call of the Grand, First and Second Panel Jurors was then commenced.

All answered to their names but Thomas Harmon of Brownfield, on the First Panel, and Charles H. McKensie, Rumford, George L. Smith, Hanover and George P. Stanley of Dixfield, of the Second Panel were excused, owing to urgent business requiring their immediate attention. These with J. A. Jones of Fryeburg, who had been previously excused, left a deficiency of one juror in the Second Panel.

The jurors they now stand are:

Fred W. Warren, Buckfield.

The Grand Jury empaneled and started in to work at once. Several cases were disposed of during Tuesday.

The Traverse Juries were excused at 11.30 o'clock until 9.30 a. m. Wednesday.

Court Officers.

The following court officers are also in attendance:

Justice Presiding—Henry C. Peabody.

Clerk—Chas. F. Starbird.

Stenographer—J. A. Hayden.

County Attorney—Eliery C. Park.

Sheriff—James L. E. Hammond.

Deputy as Clerk—H. E. Hammond.

G. P. Barnes, Clerk of the Court.

Messenger—W. A. Barrows.

The afternoon session of the court was announced in the usual manner at about 2 o'clock and the first hour was spent in assigning the days upon which the various trials were to be held. At the close of this business a memorial service was held in honor of John C. Swasey, Jr., and Luther H. Lutton, both members of the Oxford Bar who have recently passed away, and a number of resolutions were unanimously passed.

WHEREAS: It has pleased God to remove from our midst our esteemed brother, Luther H. Lutton, late of Dixfield, and brother of John C. Swasey, Esq.,

Resolved: That in his death the Oxford Bar has sustained a loss of one who represented the vital strength and the noble characteristics of the Oxford Bar of a past generation, a man of sterling worth, upright, honorable and straightforward.

Be It Resolved: That an expression of our tender sympathies be tendered to the sorrowing relatives of our deceased brother; that a copy of the resolutions be spread upon the court records, and a copy thereof be read by the Clerk of Courts to the family of the deceased brother.

WHEREAS: It has pleased God to remove from our midst our esteemed brother, Luther H. Lutton, late of Dixfield, and brother of John C. Swasey, Esq.,

Resolved: That the members of the Oxford Bar humbly bow submission to the decree of the Almighty. We deplore the seeming untimely termination of his life, but recognize in his early manhood, but recognize the fact that our views are narrowed by our human limitations and that his death is a loss to the community as great as that of his divine science and the universe embraces all that is wise and good.

Resolved: That the Oxford Bar, in its unhappy event tender its most heart-felt sympathies to the family and relatives of our deceased brother. Our grief shall mingle with theirs, and our prayers with theirs attend our brother's soul for its welfare.

Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the court records and a copy thereof be read by the Clerk of Courts to the family of the deceased brother of our regard and affection for him.

AMERUS STEARNS Committee

MERTON L. KIMBALL, on

CLAYTON K. BROOKS, Resolutions.

Various men of the Bar spoke, telling of the esteem in which these two men were held and Judge Peabody made a few remarks endorsing the resolutions saying, in part:

It was not my privilege to have known these deceased brethren of the bar professionally, or to have enjoyed their social acquaintance, but I have heard them praised as men of honorable lives and good deeds.

Carlyle said of a friend who had died: "He took a man's life with him. And so it is that the death of a good man, whether it be in the bloom of youth or in the maturity of years, is a calamity, an irreparable loss, not only to the community, but to the world."

The entrance of the bar to assemble and to recall the words, the acts and personal traits of their associates, whose presence is lost to sight, and to present them like moving pictures, to be cherished in affectionate remembrance, is a grateful and a noble thing.

The memory of your departed brethren meet my approval, and I fully sympathize with you in your sorrow and your grief.

The resolutions that have been presented meet the approval of the court, and they may be entered of record, and as a further recognition of the worth of these deceased brethren, and as a token of respect to their memory.

At the close of his remarks a motion was made to adjourn, out of respect to the memory of the departed brothers to Wednesday at 9.30 a. m., and it was so ordered by the court.

Wednesday morning the first case for the March term was taken up, that of

An Interesting Boston Institution

(Editorial Correspondence.)
Surely this is an age of concentration. The writer was never more impressed with this fact than when in Boston recently he had occasion to visit the office of Dr. Greene, located at 34 Temple Place, and found the doctor and his able staff of trained specialists were treating patients by correspondence all over the country. We knew that the ladies in Maine bought their goods by samples in Boston but we had no idea that you could be treated successfully and so efficiently for almost any disease through the mail, but such we found to be the case. When we expressed our surprise over this new departure the doctor assured us that it was no new departure for them whatever, for the business that was founded by his father, Dr. Reuben Greene, more than forty years ago, had been constantly on the increase and as the doctor put it, "If we had not met with a degree of success our business would not have grown to its present enormous proportions." Dr. Greene, the elder, was a typical Vermont farmer. You had only to see him to be assured of his sterling integrity and worth. It would do a sick man good just to look at the venerable practitioner as we recall him a quarter of a century ago. A counterfeit of his rugged features is to be seen in the reception room of the office he so long occupied. Even to look upon his face to-day inspires life and courage.

The doctor having a moment to spare, we sat and chatted with him in regard to his practice. He said very frankly that while of course they had a large office practice, having among their list of patients many of the first families in Boston and vicinity, there were a large number of people sick and suffering all over the country who could not come to his office. To help these people from a distance he had instituted what would be known as home treatment. His speciality is chronic and nervous diseases of all kinds, and he is especially careful that no one should associate his treatment with necromancy or clairvoyance or any species of mind-reading, Christian Science and the like. He goes through no such tomfoolery as calling for a look of your hair or the year you were born, or anything of that description, but that he may treat you understandingly he sends you on application a symptom blank which, when intelligently filled out, gives the trained specialist a good idea of what the ailments are. If for any reason there is any hesitancy further questions are asked so that the case may be treated in the most intelligent manner. A record of each case is kept and when medicines are prescribed the fact is recorded and each and every symptom of the patient from time to time is noted. It makes no difference whether the person writing resides within five miles or a thousand, the case can be treated with equal success.

Dr. Greene has very spacious and finely fitted offices for carrying on this enormous practice, and he occupies two entire floors of the block at 34 Temple Place. The best thing that we noticed about the whole establishment is the laboratory right in the rear of the doctor's private consulting room, where every ounce of medicine prescribed is carefully compounded from the purest roots and herbs. It may or may not be generally known that the doctor uses no drugs or poison but all his remedies are extracts from pure roots and herbs, and that reminds us that all these are prepared by wholesale at the five story brick block at 615 Albany St., where the doctor keeps an immense quantity of native and imported roots and herbs that his long practice has satisfied him are best suited to supply the needs of the wholesale laboratory is obtained every morning so that nothing stale shall in any manner enter into any of the medicines compounded. But in our praise of the laboratory we had forgotten the center front room finished and furnished in the best of taste is the reception room, where all patients are received. The consulting rooms are on either side and back of them, as has already been stated, is the laboratory where, in addition to the prescriptions compounded, more than forty different professional remedies that were discovered by Dr. Reuben Greene and used with great success in his practice for many years are put up, the well known Dr. Greene's Nervura being one of the forty.

In the rear of the laboratory are the correspondence rooms, where the physicians, after carefully considering the case of each individual patient, dictate to the stenographers the replies to their questions and the treatment proposed. No one who has not been favored with a visit to this room can have any idea of the thoughtful care and attention that is given these replies. An opinion in regard to any case, the cause of the disease, the probability of a cure and the price of the necessary medicine required to effect that cure are all carefully and sympathetically given and it is then for the patient to decide for himself whether he had better take another step and be cured.

There has probably been as much advance made in regard to the manner in which disease, pain and suffering are looked upon by the masses as in any other field of investigation. When I was a boy sickness was looked upon as one of the ills of life to be endured and little or no thought was taken to effect a cure unless the end seemed to be near, when efforts were then often too late. Now all this is changed. Disease of every sort and kind is considered by intelligent people as an insidious foe against which we should battle, and defeat if it is a possible thing, hence we are now more ready to consult a doctor, to questions, and he sees at a glance at the sheet that the patient is suffering from a severe attack of catarrh he readily and conscientiously warns that person, be he young or old, that catarrh is the first stepping stone to consumption and that a cure now comparatively easy, simple and inexpensive will be entirely out of the question a few years later, especially if the patient is nearing or past middle life. One of our readers is asking us why the doctor is so positive of this fact. If you were in his office to-day and should ask this question he could take you into his back office and show you the records of thousands of cases that started in simple catarrh and being checked in season an absolute and permanent cure resulted. What is true in catarrh is equally true in hundreds of other cases that he treats so successfully.

Nervous troubles of all kinds are a specialty with Dr. Greene and he has shown conclusively that the condition of the nerves has an all-important influence in all chronic troubles. His remedies act upon the system through the nerves and blood and being made entirely of vegetable ingredients they have demonstrated by the records in his office their wonderful efficiency.

Copies of each letter that he sends are made a part of the records so that be the correspondence long or short, connected or interrupted by an interval of years, the doctor can at a moment's notice inform himself as to the history of the disease as though each case was the only one he was treating; thus the reader will see how rational and natural and the doctor's success is the best guarantee of the feasibility of the plan. The consultations whether by mail or orally are free, the charges made being simply for the medicine prescribed. Thus it will be seen that it will cost nothing to have the doctor's opinion on your case and then you can use your own judgment in regard to ordering the medicines that he suggests will effect the cure.

We hear one of our readers asking how it is that Dr. Greene can treat a case that he has never seen more successfully than the family physician who has known the patient from birth. That is just the question that we put to the genial doctor, and here is his reply: "Your family physician has of necessity to have more or less knowledge of every conceivable complaint and disease that flesh is heir to. He has such a wide range of practice that it is utterly impossible that he should be a specialist in any one branch. We devote no time whatever in this office to accidents, surgery, or a thousand and other branches of materia medica, but confine ourselves to chronic diseases and nervous disorders, and their attending ills, such as dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney troubles, catarrh, nervous prostration, nervous debility, blood and skin troubles. Thus it will readily be seen that we can devote our entire time to one specialty, and patients much better service than it is possible for a general practitioner to do for his nearest neighbor.

But beyond all this, there is the fact that our experience is not with a few cases of thousands of cases, that our records of every case are complete, making a perfect history to refer to whenever unusual complications present themselves. That which must necessarily be experimental with any local doctor is with us a practical certainty. Certain symptoms indicate with exactness to us the condition with which we have to cope and how successful our methods are the records show."

Back of the correspondence rooms in Dr. Greene's establishment is the shipping room, where all medicines are prepared for the mail or express. This is a very important part of the business and has to have the careful supervision of men of long experience in this department. The second floor of the block is devoted wholly to consultation rooms and the advertising department, for it should be known and is known to all intelligent readers of newspapers that it is no little work to prepare the advertisements that are sent broadcast making known the curative qualities of Dr. Greene's several specifics. Taken altogether it is a most interesting establishment to visit and I have got to confess that although I have been in a great many medical offices and know something of the inside workings of such establishments, there is no more on scientific work done in any medical office in Boston or the United States than that being done by Dr. Greene and his noble staff of expert specialists at 34 Temple Place, Boston.

BETHEL.

Dr. Charles Delos Hill
Dr. Bethel passed away in that place, Friday, March 7th, after about two weeks' illness from typhoid fever, aged about 47 years.

The death of Dr. Hill comes close to the hearts of the people in general in this and surrounding towns. He was extensively known and held the confidence and esteem of the people as a professional man, so also was he loved and respected as a citizen. He was interested in every enterprise that would benefit the community in any form, encouraging education of the highest order, temperance and the general principles of right living. Our pen is inadequate to express the loss we feel in the going-out of Dr. Hill. We lose many in one. We lose a competent physician, a skillful surgeon, a public benefactor and an all-around genial and much respected citizen. He has made a record sufficient for a life of four score years.

Dr. Hill was born in Fryeburg, March 19, 1855, the son of Cyrus K. and Charlotte S. Hill. He resided in Limerick during his boyhood. In 1877 he entered a medical college in Brunswick and after graduating spent the following year in the Maine General Hospital at Portland. At the end of the year he went to Bethel and has practiced medicine here since, up to within a short time of his decease.

His loss will be deeply felt everywhere in this vicinity, as he was well known here both as a physician and a member of the State Board of Pension Examiners.

Dr. Hill never married, both his parents and brother are dead and he is survived only by two nephews and a niece. He was a member of Bethel Lodge, No. 97, F. & A. M., and the Oxford Royal Arch Chapter. In politics he was a Republican but where the interests of the town were at stake he was a public spirited and considered the good of the town before all else.

Dr. Hill continued to practice for some time after being taken ill and for several days complained of not feeling well but he was finally compelled to take to his bed.

Drs. Williamson and King of Portland were called and Dr. Sturdivant of Bethel was also in attendance, while two trained nurses were there to care for him. Everything possible was done but to no avail and he passed away, Friday.

Funeral services were held at the late residence, Sunday, March 9th, Revs. F. E. Barton, Arthur Varley and O. S. Pillsbury officiating. The interment was at Saco.

The floral display was beautiful and very abundant.

James S. Bartlett is recovering from his late severe sickness.

Flora J. Wheeler went to Hale, Tuesday, to visit her mother and sister.

The Garland house near Seth Walker's has been sold and is being torn down.

Hiram Twitchell and wife are improving. Mrs. T. is still confined to the house.

Mrs. G. A. Hastings is able to be on the streets occasionally and is slowly improving.

Dr. G. L. Sturdivant has rented and will occupy the premises made vacant by the death of Dr. C. D. Hill.

J. F. Haggood keeps mostly inside of his buildings this winter. He has not been to the village for two years.

The lumbermen who know claim that there is more snow to facilitate lumbering interests in a 10-mile circuit from Bethel than in any other place in the State. It is a favor sometimes to live in a stormy location.

Dr. L. H. Wright of Vermont is to locate in Bethel, occupying the rooms in Hastings Block lately vacated by Dr. G. L. Sturdivant as an office. Dr. Wright is a young man just getting well established in his profession and comes well recommended.

The Farmer's Institute.
The institute meeting held here, last Friday, in the interests of agriculture was very well attended, although the traveling was not very good and the lumbering men were trying to take advantage of the sledding that remained.

The exercises of the day were given over to the commissioner of agriculture, Hon. A. W. Gilman.

J. W. Clark, the apple expert, of Massachusetts, was first introduced. He talked on the planting of apples, the care of them while growing and the gathering and packing them for shipment, etc. The lecture was of great interest to the large audience gathered in the Grange Hall.

After this followed a recess and a nice dinner was served in the dining hall, prepared by the members of the Grange under whose auspices the meeting was held.

In a little more than an hour the meeting was called to order. Hon. Mr. Gilman assuming chairmanship.

D. H. Morse was next introduced and he addressed the audience on "Hay Production." A long and interesting discussion followed. Next the ladies enjoyed a lecture given by Prof. J. L. Hills of Vermont Agricultural Experiment Station. The subject was "Dairying" and all along that line. He spoke concisely and to the point.

It was altogether a very interesting and instructive meeting. While the ladies and gentlemen of the Grange spared no pains to make it as entertaining as possible in every detail.

The all-day Grange meeting held here, last Saturday, called out a goodly number. The routine work with a well carried out program made a very enjoyable time.

The National Standard, No. 3, Automatic Fire Extinguishers. Accepted by the National Board of Underwriters of America. Adopted by the United States government, and fall the leading institutions. All fire departments use them. Always charged ready for use. Does not require an expert to operate them. Full directions for charging and discharging in raised letters on each machine. A child or a lady can use them as well as a man. Simply turn bottom end up, point the hose at the fire and the work is done. They can be recharged in two minutes' time at very small cost. They will put out an oil fire, lightning fire, or a fire in or around a chimney, better than any amount of water. They will last—I don't know how long—perhaps a thousand years, I guess. I am agent for them in the towns of Norway, Albany, Stoneham, Sweden, Bridgton, Harrison and Walcott.

Also I am agent for the U. S. Separator, the machine that wins the gold medals. We put them in on a guarantee that they do all that is claimed for them to do, or no sale.

William Grafton of Rumford Falls, plaintiff vs. John Summers of Portland, defendant. This was a suit to recover damages for defendant's maintaining a nuisance, as plaintiff's premises in Rumford Falls on property for which defendant was the owner.

The principal points of the case argued by the plaintiff were that John Summers owned, it was thought at the time the suit was brought, but afterwards found that the property on which said nuisance was located was in his wife's name, certain land and buildings on Main Avenue, Rumford Falls, situated within a few feet of plaintiff's house and that a nuisance was permitted on the property without attempt on the part of Summers to abolish it, said property being within a few feet of a pantry in plaintiff's house.

This water nuisance, it was stated, was a nuisance of the most time for several years in a most filthy and unsanitary condition and much of the time overgrown and stood in puddles on the ground about both houses and several men ran into plaintiff's cellar, rendering same unfit for use.

Several witnesses testified to practically the same effect and cross examination failed to change the main story. A recess was given the jurors late in the afternoon and during that time the counsel for the defense made a motion for a non-suit on the ground that plaintiff had sued the wrong party, the property being in the name of Mrs. Summers, wife of the defendant and bringing out several technical points.

Counsel for plaintiff next had the floor and claimed that the wording of the writ was broad enough to cover the case of the principal or the agent.

Judge Peabody declined to order a non-suit and the case was continued, up to the court adjourning, to Thursday forenoon.

Before the court convened Thursday forenoon, the defendant made a private settlement with the plaintiff outside the court and this closes the case.

Thursday morning, the case of Mrs. Emily Small of Paris, plaintiff, vs. J. A. Thompson, defendant, was called. Kimball & Son of Norway for plaintiff, J. A. Wright for defendant.

Oxford Bar Temperance Meeting.
In accordance with the custom which has prevailed in Oxford County for a number of years, a temperance meeting was held at the Court House, Wednesday evening. The court room and balcony were pretty well filled and the interest of the spectators did not flag for a moment, as one speaker, after another followed in rapid succession and the meeting was in session only about one and one-half hours.

Judge C. F. Whitman, clerk of courts, called the meeting to order at 7:30 and introduced the speakers, consisting of the Rev. Mr. C. F. Barnes of Norway, who, after a few remarks, called upon the district attorney, E. C. Park of Bethel.

Mr. Park spoke for a few minutes very interestingly on the temperance question throughout the State and on the cause of prohibition.

Several other members of the bar were introduced during the evening and spoke on the same subject, among whom were Henry E. Hammond of Paris, Judge C. L. DeGroot of Norway, Virgil E. DeGroot, Buckfield, Francis Fox, Kezar Falls, and as a grand climacter John P. Stacey of Canton, one of the best speakers and smartest lawyers on the circuit.

Mr. Swasey spoke very eloquently and all the humor question, standing out firm and strong for the no-license law and the enforcement of the same.

At the banquet of the Bar Association, Mr. Swasey stated nothing stronger than before them. While the banquet in other counties of the State Mr. Swasey County he had no need to do that. He also said that something should be done to stop to men's drinking and to have a strain or other public conveyance. Passengers paid their fare for a seat and a decent conveyance from one part of the State or country to another and it was an absolute insult to any respectable man, woman or child to have a miserable not drinking in the same car. This was not a right state of affairs and should be remedied.

Mr. Swasey said Pearson, the present sheriff in Cumberland County, would undoubtedly be re-elected and continue the good work against this curse of modern civilization.

The meeting was brought to a close at about 9 o'clock. The hour and one-half had been all too short to hear some of the able speakers present but the meeting had been full of good thoughts for a temperance cause, coming from prominent workers for prohibition.

EAST STONEHAM.

Exciting Runaway.

There was quite an exciting runaway past here last Thursday a. m. of a horse belonging to Fred Bartlett with a sleigh attached. Mr. Bartlett was at Lynchville with his team. Just how the animal happened to get started I have not learned, but as the blanket was on the horse when passing through this place, suppose it became unhitched or was frightened. It ran three miles at least before being caught. The runaway passed two single teams and came into collision with E. A. McAllister's double team, breaking the sleigh. I have not learned that any further harm was done. Fortunately no one was injured. Near Ephraim McAllister's the horse was captured.

It has been rumored that a case of small pox has broken out at the Beal's House, but this statement is absolutely without foundation and in this particular equals many of the other small pox scares throughout New England started by light-headed idiots, either because they want the excitement or something to talk about.

Mrs. Cora M. W. Greenleaf, whose poems are so much enjoyed by the readers of the Advertiser, has been asked to write for a New York paper. Her poems in the Advertiser had attracted attention by their unusual merit and she was written to about the matter. Her writings always make pleasing reading and are full of surprises. Perhaps she may become another famous Maine writer of verse.

Letter to Frank H. Noyes.

Norway, Me.
Dear Sir: When you see a well-dressed man, you like to say: "There's a sample of my clothes. That man is worth two of himself as he was when he came to me."

We have the same feeling. Our paint on a house is worth twice as much as old-fashion painter's paint, lead and oil. It looks the same when first put on. In three months it don't. In three years it decidedly don't.

Lead and oil chalks off in three years; it is considered a first-rate job that lasts three years.

Devote lead and zinc is about as good in three years as it was the day the painter left it.

Zinc is the secret of it; no secret at all. A good many painters know zinc; some mix it in with their lead. We grind it in; not a little; good deal.

It's the zinc and grinding that does it. You can't mix zinc by hand. We grind it by machinery.

Painters are finding us out, though some painters are slow.

You know that it pays a good man to wear good clothes. How many customers have you that know it?

Yours truly,
F. W. Devor & Co.

Mothers' Meeting.

The W. C. T. U. Mother's Club met on Wednesday, Feb. 26, with Mrs. Frances Cummings. Notwithstanding the stormy day about twenty ladies were present, which speaks well for the interest shown in these meetings.

After the usual devotional exercises by the president, Mertie French sang two very beautiful solos.

Mrs. Katharine Cummings gave the readings on the subject, "Parents' Mistake: Intemperance, Tyranny."

Fannie Cummings read three poems which were appropriate to the thoughts of the afternoon.

Some of the more important thoughts expressed were:

Intemperance is a fault no parent wants his child to possess, yet most parents teach their children intemperate ways of living.

Over-eating and eating wrong kinds of food are two common forms of intemperance which often lead to very serious troubles.

Eating more food than one needs overloads the stomach and brings on stomach troubles. Eating rich, highly spiced foods cause an unnatural condition of the stomach. The child's stomach is more sensitive than that of the adult, therefore is more easily injured.

Parents err seriously when they give children the same foods they themselves can eat. The child's system does not secrete the same digestive juices as does that of the adult, therefore every mother should make it a point to feed her children simply, and every mother should study the human system and the value of all foods that she may know how to feed her family intelligently and not blindly, for the good health of a family depends largely upon the food the family eats.

If the human system is kept in good condition by eating and drinking wisely, by breathing plenty of fresh air and taking a sufficient amount of exercise and rest, it is not so likely to take colds, epidemics and other diseases, the germs of which are constantly in the atmosphere.

A unhealthy stomach is constantly craving for something it does not get, and is often led to try to satisfy that craving by drinking alcoholic liquors.

Thus the drink habit is formed.

Another great mistake of the parent is in giving children alcoholic liquors as medicines.

The parent who gives the child alcoholic liquors or medicines that contain alcoholic liquors or opiates to any great extent, or indulges the child in beer or other should not be surprised if the child develops the drink habit later in life.

Soothing syrups and paragonics are specially to be condemned, for they dull the sensibilities and prevent the healthy development of the child.

The parent who wishes his child to be temperate in all things, to be kind and sweet tempered should studiously avoid giving him alcoholics, opiates, narcotics, including tea and coffee, all rich and highly spiced foods, and too much meat.

The child who is fed on simple foods, such as milk, well-cooked cereals and entire wheat bread, fruits and eggs, who is allowed to breathe plenty of fresh air, and is kept from too much nervous excitement, will overcome hereditary tendencies, and in nine cases out of ten will develop into a rosy, healthy, happy child.

How do parents teach their children to be tyrants? Chiefly by laughing at their cute sayings and doings, and by allowing them to be saucy and disrespectful to their elders. It is right to enjoy the brightness of our little ones, but it is wrong to make them think that they are any smarter or better than other children, and that surely will get this opinion if the older ones laugh at their doings, and talk over their cute ways before the children. Such children are considered pert and tyrannical and no one likes them. Teach the children to be natural, modest and respectful and to obey their parents. This can best be done by checking the first saucy or disrespectful words. In older children, where bad habits are already formed, the parent should be sympathetic and patient, kindly leading the child to see his faults and the bad results of these faults.

Child-training requires constant care and ceaseless effort, and the tired mother is often tempted to "let things go," but it will pay to keep on the watch, wisely guiding, and never nagging or scolding. Dear mothers, these little children that God has entrusted to your care have within them wonderful possibilities. Help them now to develop, and best that is in them that you may be proud of their positions in life, when they shall become grown. Some of the greatest men and women of American have come from cabin homes, where the parents struggled with poverty, but these parents took time to train their children. "How can you foretell what will be the future of the child in your home?—And even if he never reaches earthly eminence, or worldly success, or a position of honor, or a position of power, the child may be a vital force in deciding the destiny of the race in this coming century. Let her magnify her office, for

"Motherhood is priced of God
At price no man may dare
To lessen or misunderstand."

MOTHERS MUST GUIDE

Should Watch the Physical Development of Their Daughters. Earnest Words From Mrs. Pinkham to Mothers.

Every mother possesses information of vital value to her young daughter. That daughter is a precious legacy, and the responsibility for her future is largely in the hands of the mother. The mysterious change that develops the thoughtless girl into the thoughtful woman should find the mother on the watch day and night. As she cares for the physical well-being of her daughter, so will the woman be, and her children also.

When the young girl's thoughts become sluggish, when she experiences headaches, dizziness, faintness, and exhibits an abnormal disposition to sleep, pains in the back and lower limbs, eyes dim, desire for solitude, and a dislike for the society of other girls, when she is a mystery to herself and friends, then the mother should go to her aid promptly. At such a time the greatest aid to nature is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It prepares the young system for the coming change, and is the surest reliance in this hour of trial.

Mothers Who Allow Their Daughters to Suffer are Cruel When Relief is Easily Obtained. Read This Mother's Experience.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish advice in regard to my daughter. She is thirteen years old and never menstruated. We have had the doctor to her and he said she did not have enough blood. She has been taking iron for three months but is no better. In the morning she vomits, some days she cannot keep anything on her stomach until twelve o'clock. If she tries to do anything she gets faint. Has headache all the time, is as white as marble with great dark rings under her eyes. Please write and tell me what to do as I am discouraged with the doctor."—Mrs. CHAS. SOUTHARD, Phoenix Mills, N.Y. (Jan. 19, 1900.)

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Last January I wrote you about my daughter, and told you what our family doctor said about her. I saw some doctors and he said she had quick consumption. After receiving your letter, I began giving her your remedies, and after taking four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and four of Blood Purifier, she is now well and strong as ever. Menstrues have appeared and are regular. I can never praise your remedies enough for they saved my daughter's life."—Mrs. CHAS. SOUTHARD, Phoenix Mills, N.Y. (Dec. 14, 1900.)

Any young girl or any mother is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice in regard to her sickness. No one has had greater experience or success in guiding mothers and their daughters to health. Thousands have trusted her and are glad. She charges nothing for advice. Write to-day.

$5000 REWARD.—We have deposited with the National City Bank of Lynn, $5000, which will be paid to any person who can find that the above testimonial letters are not genuine, or were published without the written consent of the writer. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

This image is a high-contrast, black and white scan of a vertical strip from a document. The strip is characterized by a dark, irregular vertical band running down the center, which appears to be a shadow or a heavily textured area. The left side of the strip is white, and the right side is black. There are some faint, illegible markings and a small, dark, vertical line near the bottom right. The overall appearance is that of a heavily degraded or noisy scan of a document page.
